What, No Air-Conditioning?

With the forecast calling for more of the 102 degree temperatures recorded yesterday in Corsicana, these students attending summer classes at Corsicana High School felt the "heat" of the subject when the air-conditioning system at the school went out this morning. As the air-conditioning system was being repaired, the classes went out also—outside that is. (Sun Staff Photo by Monte Smith)

Business MUST Be Bad

By KIT BAUMAN
Sun Staff Writer

So you think business is bad, huh?

Tom Westbrook and his grandson Matt could agree more. In fact, they'll tell you things are so tough you can't even give things away.

Matt, a 12-year-old from Irving, was visiting with his grandfather recently and spent part of each day in the repair shop Tom owns at 214 S. Beaton.

Being a business-minded youth, Matt saw a way to clear a buck or two when his grandfather gave him a handful of "donut" water heaters, the type that are little more than heating coils which can be used to warm up small amounts of water. Matt hung a sign in the shop's front window, advertising the heaters on sale for $1 apiece, then settled back to await the rush.

When there were no takers after the first day, Matt announced that the price per heater was dropping to fifty cents per unit. Up went a new sign, but again no customers.

On the third morning, still another sign went up, this one advertising the heaters on sale for one cent each. At the end of the day, the discouraged young water heater magnate still had his original stock.

The youngster's visit came to a close and he returned to his parent's home in Irving, his experience as an independent businessman probably forgotten. But grandfather Tom hadn't forgotten—he decided to make one more effort at selling the not-so-hot water heaters.

Outside the repair shop Wednesday morning appeared another sign with the message, "Take this quarter and haul this water heater off." Taped to the sheet of paper was a shiny twenty-five-cent piece.

The quarter and the water heaters are still there. Westbrook says no one has even asked about it, apparently assuming it must be some sort of joke.

It's either the slack season for "donut" water heaters or else there's no demand for quarters.....

Volunteer Promises To Fix M-E-N Water System Line

By KIT BAUMAN
Golden Circle Editor

MILDRED—Normal water service will be restored "within 24 hours" to the 195 subscribers on the M-E-N Water System line, promised a volunteer repairman Monday night during a meeting of the board at the Mildred High School gymnasium.

Aubrey Henshaw, one of three residents experienced in the operation of water lines who volunteered to help the beleaguered board, said, "I believe we can have this whole system in water within 24 hours if we'll all just cool off."

Lack of pressure on the line that feeds the three storage tanks on the line was pinpointed as the probable cause of trouble that has left residents with off-and-on service for the last five weeks. Henshaw, Board Secretary Dennis Donaho and others left immediately after the hour-and-a-half meeting to begin work on the line.

Pressure on the line has been at 20 to 30 pounds of pressure, Donaho told the 60 to 70 residents at the meeting. Several persons said pressure should be at 70 to 80 pounds at all times.

"60 pounds of pressure is the lowest that Number Two can operate at," Henshaw added.

"Well, it's too low then," Donaho admitted.

"I think if we could catch up, we'd be all right," he added.

Asked at the outset of the meeting if everybody had water, several angrily responded that they did not. Most of them lived in the area served by Tank Number Three.

"We've done everything we could," Donaho told the group as he read off a list of the troubles that had arisen along the line in the past five weeks.

The initial disruption came, he said, when an electrical failure knocked out the pumping station at Tank Number One. A work crew digging in the vicinity of the Angus line, which ties into Tank Number Three, caused the second breakage. (Earlier reports had the breakage coming at the feeder line at Lake Halbert.

Working to restore normal water service, repairmen ran into the following problems:

—A work crew broke a four-inch line near Navarro.

—Electrical problems shut down the pump at Tank Number Two.

—A four-inch line at Lake Halbert ruptured.

—Another four-inch line, this one behind Tank Number Three, began to leak. "The ground was so dry we didn't know where it was leaking until several days had passed," Donaho said.

—The pressure motor at Tank Number Two failed and had to be repaired.

—Still another pipeline breakage was found in Navarro.

Finally, wind and lightning knocked out the pumping station at the Mildred school, or Tank Number Two.

Several persons called for the board to hire a full-time maintenance man to look after the system, but were turned down with the explanation that the system—over thirty miles of pipeline alone—is too large for just one man.

"Why can't we have a man all the time?", asked one woman, "even if it means raising our water bill?"

"Well, that's what it'll take," replied Donaho.

(The line, built at a cost of $219,000, was constructed to serve 175 subscribers with a built-in increase factor of 20 per cent. The board currently pays $116 a month to a repairman and $150 a month to a meter reader.)

Asked if the board had asked subscribers to conserve water in an effort to fill the depleted tanks, Donaho answered, "No, I thought people knew we were out of water."

A motion to refuse any new subscribers was defeated after several residents said that such a move would obviously discourage people from moving into the area. Donaho, also in opposition to the motion, added, "I'll tell you this, though: I'm not in favor of accepting any new people until we get this thing fixed."

Left unanswered was the question of how payments for water service during the last five weeks were to be handled. Subscribers pay a flat rate of $8 per month on 3,000 gallons of water; the cost is graduated upwards from the 3,000-gallon figure. Several residents said that their meters indicated more than the normal flow although they had been without water much of that time.

"If I'm paying for air, then we're all paying for air," said one man.

"That's exactly what a lot of us are paying for," added another.

A few residents indicated that they would refuse to pay their bills for the period of time they claim to have been without water.

"What you're doing," said Donaho, "is leaving it up to the board to decide what to do, and frankly, I don't want that responsibility...we'll have no choice but to go in and take your meters out."

Dawson Man Dies in Fire

One man was burned to death and two people were seriously injured in a house fire late Monday afternoon in Dawson.

Gilbert A. Holt, 80, of Dawson died in the blaze at his home which occurred at 8 p.m. His sister, Lurine Sims, 69, received second degree burns on her face and hands while her son, Glenn E. Sims, 44, had second and third degree burns over his upper body, arms and face.

Deputy Sheriff Harold Pitts who investigated the incident, said the fire apparently started as Sims was lighting a cigarette for Holt. A service station attendant in Dawson said he heard an explosion and saw black smoke coming from the house.

Sims was reported in poor condition at Memorial Hospital this morning while Mrs. Sims was listed in fair condition.

City 'Equalizers' Note Inequities In Tax System

By BETTY JEAN CLAY
Sun Staff Writer

Corsicana's Board of Equalization recommended to city officials Wednesday night that the city endorse the Board's attempts to reactivate the "Ehrenborg Appraisal System", established in 1964-65 and later abandoned, as the best system whereby uniform standards can be applied in arriving at appraisal valuations resulting in equal taxes being paid by all.

Dr. L. E. McGary, chairman of the three-member Equalization board, in submitting broad recommendations from the board in a letter to Mayor Sue Youngblood, all Commissioners, City Manager Bob Brockman, City Tax Assessor-Collector Charles Pugh and Richard (Dick) Parker, part-time tax office appraiser, said the board is not concerned with how much taxes this system will produce, but rather that it will result in everyone paying an equal share as determined by applying uniform standards which the Ehrenborg system established. He reminded council members they are the policy-making body that sets the tax rate and determines what percentage ratio of card values is used in taxable property assessments.

He said it was obvious that Corsicana couldn't have equal taxes if part of the town's property was under one system, and other property was evaluated under another system—based on arbitrarily arrived at figures instead of a formula of uniformity. He estimated 80 per cent of all property is under the Ehrenborg system presently.

Displaying the Ehrenborg manual to Commission members, Chairman McGary pointed out the system was based on formulas which determined building costs on square footage, by floor plan patterns (as to rectangular, "L" shape or irregular), and took into consideration such factors, as air conditioning, extra baths, attached garages or separate, etc. The manual defines buildings by "classes", showing 51 classes covering almost every conceivable type structure with set formulas for each as a guide to the tax office, the board and property owners.

"If the formula shows a person's value is too high, then it should be lowered," Chairman McGary said, adding that if the formula shows a value is too low, then it should be adjusted accordingly.

"We are not trying to pick on anyone, but unfortunately someone has to be first," when a re-appraisal of all property is undertaken, or an attempt is made to return to applying standards of uniformity.

"I don't see any way to resolve it so that everyone is equalized in one year without spending a tremendous amount of money," he said, adding this would be the "ideal way" to do it. Acknowledging that a practical approach has to be taken, he said the board is recommending that Corsicana begin by hiring one or two full-time tax appraisers. He said the appraisers could re-appraise card values, say one-fourth of all property a year for four years until everything in town had been completely re-evaluated and the formulas utilized in the Ehrenborg system should be updated at the same time to take into account the change in building costs since 1956.

The board recommends the city approach the schools and county on sharing a pro rata cost of arriving at a complete reappraisal over the four-year period, or whatever period of time policymakers decide is feasible.

An accurate, updated appraisal card is the most important factor to the whole system of equalization, in the approach currently being followed by this board, Chairman McGary emphasized.

He pointed out this could only be maintained by a continuing reassessment of all property in Corsicana, and could be provided from a practical standpoint, they felt, by the city adding one or two additional appraisers.

The city is using 62½ per cent of card appraisal values now with a tax rate of $1.25 per hundred dollars, and the board is recommending that the city give serious consideration to using property values at 100 per cent, then reducing the tax rate to whatever is necessary to meet budgetary requirements. It could be easier understood by the public and reduce the number of tax computations required, he felt.

Chairman McGary said it is the board's recommendations that Corsicana consider a feasibility study be made for possible "computerization" of the tax office since there are more than 11,000 tax accounts, and it is an insurmountable task for a tax officer and a board of equalization to review and adjust every one of these annually in the 45-day period allotted for this purpose.

The board is recommending, he noted, that the city move to have building

Dallas, plan to open stores within a few months.

Arrangements were completed Wednesday morning with Harold Simmons, president of Ward Drug Co., for a Ward's Drug Store to be located in the building. Glenn Simmons, vice-president of the company, said "We think Corsicana is a very good city for our type of merchandising. We intend to put in a regular Ward's store just like the others located in the Fort Worth-Dallas area." Simmons said the store should be in operation around the first of September.

Simmons stated he was pleased with the building and modern progress Corsicana had made in the past few years and that "Ward's wants to be a part of the growth in the years to come."

Murphy also stated that a lease had been made with Coit International, Inc., to install a "Fabritic" fabric center in the complex. The company operates over 435 stores in the nation and the local store will contain 4,200 square feet of space. Opening date for Fabritic is scheduled for August.

Murphy is also negotiating with several other large chain stores which he hopes will locate in the complex. "Negotiations are under way with a grocery store, restaurant and shoe store and plans should be finalized in the next few weeks." He said if present plans "work out," the shopping center should open up jobs for over 100 people.

According to Murphy, very little remodeling will be done to the present building which has 8,500 square feet of space. Each store will have a separate entrance and there will be room for six or seven businesses. Remodeling is to begin immediately.

The building was purchased by Murphy in May after it was vacated by Gibson's when it moved into a new store. He said he has about four acres of land with the building and hopes to expand the complex in the near future.

Mexia Packs Century Into Fun Show

By SAM PENDERGRAST
Editor of The Sun

MEXIA—The people of this Limestone County town are getting together this week to take a dramatic look at 100 years of history since the arrival of the Houston and Texas Central Railroad in 1871 and, coincidentally, the arrival of a spectacular oil boom Aug. 29, 1921.

The main focus of the week-long celebration that started Saturday is the four-performance "Centena de Mexia" historical pageant being performed daily at Sundown starting Wednesday.

And talk about getting together. More than 300 children, youths, grandmothers, businessmen, civic leaders, educators and "just plain folks" are in the cast alone, while practically everybody in town has had a hand in the production in one way or another. More than 4900 advance tickets had been sold Tuesday for the stadium with some 8000 seats available during the four-day run of the pageant.

The show itself is probably the biggest thing to hit Mexia since the oil boom that saw production rise to more than 59 million barrels a year during the 1920's.

Written and directed by Longview Community Theater director Dudley Remus with choreography by his wife, Marilyn, the action starts with the presentation of Centennial Queen Sue Elliott by Centennial President Hank Schulte, with an honor guard of Brownies, then moves quickly into an hour-and-a-half pageant that packs a hundred years of history into a show that is fun for visitors but a special delight to the people of Mexia themselves. They not only get the chance to remember their lively past but to help in recreating it. Obviously, they love it.

Divided into 16 basic scenes, the pageant gets under way with the depiction of the first settlers in the North Central Texas area, the Tehuacana Indians, then moves quickly into the infamous "Massacre at Parker's Fort" and the accompanying kidnapping of Cynthia Ann Parker by the Indians.

But the pioneers were not to be turned back, as the action bears out, and the settlers eventually outnumber the Indians onstage.

One of the most dramatic moments in the show comes when the Mexia men have returned from the Civil War and Abraham Lincoln is highlighted at center stage over a reading of part of his Gettysburg Address.

Development of early congregations is indicated following the organization of Mexia's first place of worship—a Presbyterian church that was planned in the back room of a general store.

And a predictably joyous occasion is depicted for the 1871 incorporation celebration by the new town.

The advent of the first school is used as an excuse for a wacky skit symbolizing a boll weevil invasion of the area, and the coming of the railroad is dramatized by three tiny thespians bobbing across the huge playing field in cardboard replicas of parts of a locomotive.

The second half of the historical spectacle traces the development of Mexia through the First and Second World Wars, the "Roaring Twenties," the oil boom and eventual lessening of activity in the petroleum industry, and a series of slides showing the development of industry, the Mexia State School for the retarded, and predictions for the future.

One of the most popular bits in the show is the scene of a baseball game at the turn of the century between the "Mexia Nine" and the Dallas "Bluestockings," with a blind umpire and two teams full of shenanigans.

And a brief tableau recalling the W.P.A. projects of the 30's.

The pageant is a part of an eight-day celebration involving virtually every sector of life in Mexia, including religious observances, picnics, a carnival,

Tickets are available from the Mexia Centennial Headquarters at 107 E. Commerce in Mexia or may be purchased at the Stadium at prices ranging from 75 cents for youngsters to $2 for reserved box seats.

Sunday School Lesson Production Credit Assn.

By Earl L. Douglass:

The International Sunday School Lesson for July 11 is entitled, "God, The Christian and Government." It deals with a problem that has always baffled Christian believers. No government is perfect. No economic system is without faults. It becomes a problem how a person is to live a good Christian life and at the same time be a loyal citizen under an imperfect government.

CHURCH AND STATE

Practically every Christian believer is convinced that it is his duty (or hers) to live under the established form of government and to do so not to the detriment of his religious faith but to its testing, improvement and enrichment. No religious man has a right to call himself a good Christian unless he is at all times trying to be a good and helpful citizen. There will be crises when a Christian man will find himself taking positions on political matters contrary to certain members of his family and to his friends. This is all to the good if controversy is carried on in a spirit of honesty and good will.

Voces may be raised in angry dissent, fists shaken and fingers pointed, yet all this can be done in a true Christian spirit and in a devout determination to serve God and one's fellows.

A Christian is not a good Christian unless he is a good citizen. Patriotism and religious faith cannot be equated, but it certainly is true that Christian faith improves one's life as a citizen and that the attempt so to separate problems of religion from problems of politics is not sound, either spiritually or politically.

DISAGREEMENT

We pride ourselves in the United States that there is absolute separation of Church and State. We believe that this makes both the State and the Church better. We need frequently to criticize our government and those who hold public office, but there is a criticism that is loyal and patriotic and a criticism that is neither loyal nor patriotic.

The beauty of democracy is the fact that its institutions can change and be improved if the people desire to have it so. We may not agree with the party in power, but our disagreement does not justify disloyalty. Patriotism is love for one's country, and everyone worthy of respect should have the loyalty and love for his country. His religion should make him a better man and a better citizen.

The Apostle Paul urged his fellow Christians to be "subject unto the higher powers." As he wrote these words there sat on the throne an emperor, Nero, one of the most notorious and evil rulers to be found in the whole of human history.

The form of government under which we live is one of the most important factors in our lives. Let your Christian faith make you a better man, insisted the Apostle, and therefore a better citizen. The time came when Christians and non-Christians alike turned against the infamous Nero. Another emperor was chosen in his place, the death sentence was placed upon Nero and when soldiers came to arrest him and drag him to execution he committed suicide.

JUSTICE FOR ALL

The intention of all sound governments is to uphold the right, to give justice to everyone and to punish and restrain those who are unsocial and break the law.

Included in the New Testament passage from the thirteenth chapter of Romans is a passage from the Book of Judges, the Fable of the Trees. It seems not to have an overwhelming message for the condition in which we live today. It teaches the general lesson that personal ambition for power and prestige are unworthy. Those who desire public position only for their own glory and eminence and not for public service are to be compared with the unproductive thorn bush, the weed or bramble, which is not a proper ruler under any circumstances. It is the duty of all Christian believers to take an active part in government and not to leave the management of their communities, states or nations in the hands of self-seeking men of little talent. One of the best ways to serve our country is to see to it that unworthy persons do not run our government.

No matter how hot the weather gets don't lose your cool. Stay calm and happy. Will be looking for the mailman to bring me a letter or card from you before I see you in next Sunday's Daily Sun. Bye until then.

Black Hills Cemetery Unit to Meet

The Black Hills Cemetery Association will meet Sunday, July 11, at 10:30 a.m. The president, J. C. Johnson, will preside for the business session, which will feature plans for installation of a new gate at the cemetery.

Neal Crawford will be the speaker for 11 a.m. worship services, and Hugh M. Parrish will be in charge of the music. Members and friends are invited to bring a picnic lunch and attend the meeting and covered dish luncheon to follow.

Received a letter from Sue, Mike's bride of three weeks. She said Mike hadn't been able to work all week due to a sad case of poison ivy. When Sue and Mike married they had an apartment rented in Austin to move into but no jobs. One of my friends make the remark to Mike that they hoped he found a job right away and he replied, "What do you mean HOPE? I HAVE TO." I was the one who worried. These two newlyweds left with an optimistic attitude that only the young have. They had no trouble finding jobs. Mike went to work for a construction company and Sue, BELIEVE THIS, got a job with the Austin-American Statesmen newspaper. Her boss is Frank Warfield Jr., who is Personnel & Credit Manager. Frank was born and raised in Corsicana and is well known here. Another co-incident, Managing Editor Tim Leifeste's father, A. C. Leifeste is in the advertising department of the Austin paper. Mrs. Broughton Purdon, writes that I mention the word SMILE so often in column that she thought I would like to use the following selected poem.

I SMILED

I saw a placard on the wall,
The single word said,
"SMILE."
I said that sounds like good advice,
I'll try it for a while.

I'd hardly got to grinning good
When I stepped upon a tack,
But I kept smiling all the time,
I thought my face would crack:

I lost my purse and wrecked my car
My troubles upward piled.
But still I kept my confidence
And smiled and smiled and SMILED.

I had appendicitis
And several other ills
I only halted smiling
To swallow various pills.

I couldn't argue politics
Or cry when loved ones died,
I had to keep on smiling
When other people cried.

My smile became a giggle,
Then turned to laughter wild.
And now I'm in a mad house,
They say because I smiled.

There is a lot to SMILE about in this 'ole world. On the other hand you Fourth of July celebrators remember there is poison ivy, mosquitoes, wasps, chiggers, ants, snakes, careless swimmers, boaters, and drunken, careless, dumb no-care drivers and YOU. Watch out for yourself, your family and the other fellow. Don't stay out in the sun too long. Don't come up being RED all over with BLUE bruises and a WHITE hospital jacket. These are patriotic COLORS but OUCH! DO have a HAPPY AND SAFE HOLIDAY.

'BYE for now, see you in Thursday's Daily Sun.

July, the month of heat and thunder is here! We read that more thunderstorms happen in July than any other month. We've got the heat—now, come on thunderstorms.

Charles "Chuck" Jameson flew into Corsicana from Taos, New Mexico to see his parents, Dolly and Joe Jameson. Dolly said, as most mothers do, that she instructed him to call her upon his return home. When he called he reported a slow but safe arrival. Seems he ran into a tail wind that slowed him down to 110 miles per hour. Am glad he was up in the air at that speed.

Dolly and I went fishing but Lady Luck didn't smile at us on this trip. I didn't even get a little one and she just caught four very small bass. Guess we should have followed Guy Poarch as we started to do. Smile. He always brings in the big ones.

Received a letter from Sue, Mike's bride of three weeks. She said Mike hadn't been able to work all week due to a sad case of poison ivy. When Sue and Mike married they had an apartment rented in Austin to move into but no jobs. One of my friends make the remark to Mike that they hoped he found a job right away and he replied, "What do you mean HOPE? I HAVE TO." I was the one who worried. These two newlyweds left with an optimistic attitude that only the young have. They had no trouble finding jobs. Mike went to work for a construction company and Sue, BELIEVE THIS, got a job with the Austin-American Statesmen newspaper. Her boss is Frank Warfield Jr., who is Personnel & Credit Manager. Frank was born and raised in Corsicana and is well known here. Another co-incident, Managing Editor Tim Leifeste's father, A. C. Leifeste is in the advertising department of the Austin paper. Imagine Corsicana is mentioned often with these three on the staff.

Special thanks dept: To the First National Bank and Chick Reed Real Estate & Insurance for the beautiful Portrait of Christ Book for Newlyweds. Am sure Sue and Mike will cherish it as Sharon and Pat have theirs.

Plans To Launch Campaign

Mansfield Wants Troops Reduced in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says the resistance capacity of the American 7th Army in Europe has become questionable with its soldiers beset by problems of "drugs, race and field comforts."

The Montana Democrat served notice he will launch a new campaign, probably this year, for phased cutbacks that would reduce the U.S. force in Europe to one division.

Last May the Senate defeated a

Mansfield proposal for halving American forces in Europe by the end of 1971, but the senator claimed a majority of the Senate now wants substantial cuts in U.S. forces.

Speaker of the state of the 7th Army, Mansfield complained the force is over-extended with too many dependents—225,000 of them—around. He continued:

"In the beginning the 7th Army was a very good army. Now it is not because of such factors as drugs, race problems, field comforts and too many dependents. The 7th Army is caught in the middle. Ahead of it are the Russians. Behind it are their dependents. They're worried about both."

In the days of Caesar the Romans were easily able to hold a line along the River Rhine—until they brought their families along. Then they became less alert and more domesticated. This is what the 7th Army has become. Their capacity to resist must be questionable the moment their families are on the scene." Other points made by Mansfield in a question-and-answer interview:

Q: Precisely when and how do you expect to revive your move in the Senate for cutting the number of U.S. troops in Europe?

A: Probably this year. In May we have a sledghammer to make a dent in the thinking not only of the administration but also of the Europeans who should realize things cannot go on much longer like this.

Q: What do you intend asking for next time?

A: The aim will be to press for a

Funds Urged For Feeding Hungry Child

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty senators, declaring millions of children may go hungry this summer, have urged the Nixon administration to release immediately millions of dollars they say were promised for a nationwide child-feeding program.

In a joint letter to George Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, the senators told the Department of Agriculture immediate localities to expand their program, then said it couldn't support requests for new funds.

The Agriculture Department announced earlier this week $18.1 million will be available for the program this summer, an amount the senators said is $15 million less than required, though they acknowledged it's three times as much as was allocated last year.

"We are concerned that millions of children in New York and Newark, in Boston and Los Angeles, in Minneapolis and Indianapolis, and in many other cities throughout the nation will not be fed this summer as promised," the senators said.

They said expansion of the summer feeding program this year "is a direct result of Department of Agriculture promotion ..."

"Our cities were urged to expand their efforts and were assured the necessary money would be forthcoming," they said.

The 40 senators reminded the administration Congress specifically authorized the secretary of agriculture to spend up to $100 million for the summer's summer programs, in addition to whatever funds might be included in the department's regular authorization bill.

The department acknowledged getting requests for $28.6 million as of June 18, the senators said, but "a more recent survey conducted by the League of Cities-U.S. Conference of Mayors revealed that summer requests actually total $33 million."

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., said in a statement his state alone needs $1.5 million to feed 100,000 children this summer.

"Under the department's allocation we will receive only $32,000," Case said.

What in your view are these realities?

A: The U.S. is maintaining too many troops there and is shouldering a lopsided burden it cannot afford. The Europeans have restored their economies. The Deutschemark is strong. The guilder is strong. The pound sterling seems to be strengthening. But the dollar is less strong.

A: By around the middle of the decade—1976 or thereabouts. Times are changing. It's up to Americans and Europeans, to face up to the realities of this graduated reduction, over a period of time, in the size of U.S. forces in Europe. Perhaps down to two divisions within a given period, then working down to President Eisenhower's old idea of keeping a single division in Europe.

Q: What do you say to the commitment any longer. We are spending more abroad than we should in view of our own economic situation.

A: Unilateral withdrawals already have taken place by the French, Portuguese, Canadians. The late President de Gaulle did so faster warning us of his intentions for three years. Yet we were on building NATO pipelines

and other installations in France and were caught short. The Portuguese for obvious reasons mean their troubles in Africa—make no contribution to NATO. Canada has cut as he was in his election campaign.

Q: Who among the Europeans do you think could do more?

A: For a start the Germans should do more. It is true some Europeans, on both sides, would like a strong Germany to rise again. The Germany of today is not the same as the old Germany.

There are many regards in Europe as well as West—against that sort of revival.

A: An extra $200 million a year is far too little. The Europeans know it. We know it. The direct dollar cost to the U.S. in supporting our forces in Europe in 1970 was $1.73 billion.

Q: But how can you reconcutting U.S. forces when NATO member-states promised to make no unilateral withdrawals threshold of nuclear war. You are prepared for that?

A: Yea. There are 7,000 American tactical nuclear weapons already deployed in Europe. They have a deterrence for the other side. In addition modern transportation could swiftly bring reinforcements to Europe from the United States in a grave emergency.

A: Russia already is in a position of advantage with troops

and other installations in France

President Says U.S. Approaching Decadence

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon believes the United States is approaching a possible decline into decadence. But he says the news media "and perhaps even presidents and politicians" can help matters by occasionally emphasizing America's good points.

The President's words took attention, at least temporarily, from what appears to be a major purpose of his trip to the Western White House: a review of foreign policy in general and Vietnam policy in particular.

Nixon, who has dwelt increasingly in recent informal speeches on the state of the nation's spiritual and moral health, expanded on the theme Tuesday talking—apparently without notes—to newspaper executives and broadcasters in Kansas City, Mo. He stopped there en route here for a two week stay.

While expressing confidence that everything will turn out right for the country, the chief executive likened the United States today to ancient Greece and Rome on the eve of their declines from greatness.

"I think of what happened to Greece and to Rome, and you see what is left—only the pillars. What has happened, of course, is that great civilizations of the past, as they have become wealthy, as they have lost their will to live, to improve, they then have become subject to the decadence that eventually destroys the civilization."

"The United States is now reaching that period."

Nixon went on to say he was convinced Americans have the vitality, courage and strength "out through this heartland and across this nation" to infuse America with "moral and spiritual strength" as well as wealth and power.

"But I also know," he said, "that people need to be reassured. The people who can reassure them are opinion leaders, editors, television, radio commentators, teachers, even perhaps presidents and politicians."

PARIS (AP) — The United States and South Vietnam will probe the new Viet Cong peace package at the weekly peace talks session Thursday in an attempt to learn if it offers an acceptable opening toward ending the Vietnam war, allied informants said.

No quick acceptance or rejection of the Communist proposal is expected, they added.

The seven-point plan was presented last Thursday by Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, head of the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks. North Vietnam immediately endorsed it.

U.S., Viet Cong To Talk Peace Proposals Thursday

Allied diplomats were giving most of their attention to the first point in Mrs. Binh's proposal, calling for the simultaneous withdrawal of all American forces and release of all prisoners of war. The plan calls for total U.S. withdrawal before the end of the year. Previously, the Viet Cong had said if American forces were pulled out by June 30 or another "reasonable" date, the question of prisoner release would be "immediately discussed."

Another aspect of the peace proposal being put under diplomatic microscopes was the statement that "the totality of military men of all parties and civilians captured in the war" would be released in a step-by-step operation coupled with the troop withdrawal.

The United States and South Vietnam will seek to determine just what prisoners the Communists have in mind—particularly whether this includes missing Americans not yet listed on the POW rolls announced by Hanoi, as well as the thousands of Vietnamese prisoners of the Saigon government who are classified by Saigon as terrorists and not military personnel.

"It is not a matter of saying yes or no to the plan tomorrow," said one source, "but instead to find out whether Mme. Binh's proposal presents an opening for real negotiations. So far, there is no such indication."

U.S. Eyes New Chinese Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. reconnaissance planes have been watching development of what may become a new Communist Chinese naval base in strategically located islands about 300 miles east of South Vietnam.

Pentagon reports tell of a large number of Chinese-escorted ship convoys carrying construction materials in recent months to the Paracel Islands in the South China Sea.

The Paracels are a group of coral islands whose ownership is disputed. Claims to them have been made by China, Taiwan, South Vietnam and the Philippines.

Pentagon analysts say they are uncertain why the Communist Chinese are increasingly active in the Paracels. But they suggest Peking may be building a naval complex to support the growing Chinese fleet in the South China Sea.

A base in the Paracels would put the Chinese in position to project their expanding naval forces more effectively in a sea area touching South Vietnam, the Philippines and Indonesia.

Sources said the Chinese have demonstrated, by warnings broadcast over Peking Radio, that they are sensitive about U.S. overflights in the Paracel area.

U.S. cameras have photographed construction of a ship berthing area, a jetty and more than 50 buildings, as well as dredging of a channel at Woody Island, one of the largest of the group.

Chinese convoys are reported sailing frequently from the port of Yulin on Hainan Island's south year.

Meanwhile, on mainland China, U.S. sources said, there is evidence the Chinese are increasing their surface-to-air missile defenses, apparently with a possible threat from Russia in mind.

Thirty-seven SAM sites have been sighted, with at least 10 more expected by the end of this year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has announced a reorganization it says will lead the nation out of the country-store era of diplomacy and reform a scope ... of diplomacy and it is tough for foreign-service officers to adjust.

The main design of the program, according to Deputy Undersecretary of State William B. Macomber, is to centralize responsibility at the higher levels and turn policymaking into a systematic operation.

the higher level to several changes in titles—including elevating Undersecretary of State John Irwin to deputy secretary—and a rearrangement of responsibilities among the assistant secretaries.

Changing the title of the department's No. 2 man, Macomber emphasizes that Irwin "is now a real chief of staff," the secretary's "alter ego" in day-to-day charge of American foreign policy in and out of the department.

Macomber said reform in the foreign-service-officer personnel policy may be the most important long-run result of the reorganization. The idea, he said, is to "get better people—more specialists under a better promotion system."

Under the old foreign-service-officer program—likened by some department officials to a guillotine approach—career diplomats were selected on the basis of a tough competitive examination stressing general knowledge.

History Accompanies Reunion Of Hervey Family at Chatfield Draft Physicals Re-Instituted Here

The Chatfield-Tupelo Community Center provided a reminiscent setting Sunday, June 27, for a reunion of the Hervey Family. The occasion was hosted by the descendants of Albert Galatin Hervey, a leading Chatfield citizen (1852-1904). Hervey was manager of the general store (Hodge & Hervey) in 1855-1857, a farmer, community religious leader and later served as a Captain in the Confederate Army. The reunion was a memorial to Captain Hervey, whose large picture hung above the head table.

Albert Burdine Hervey of Little Rock, Ark., warmly greeted guests as they arrived and directed them to the guest book. The long hall of the Community Center held various items of interest to all Herveys. Of particular interest was the family tree mounted on the wall. Its roots began in 1806 when Oney Scyprett Hervey married Elizabeth Williams in Carolina. Each direct Hervey descendant was asked to write his name on a leaf identifying himself with his ancestor and attach the leaf to its proper line.

Farther down the hall was a table holding photo albums, historical records and the original ledger from the general store at Chatfield. Behind the table was a folding screen with letters and greetings displayed, which had been received from members of the family who could not be in attendance. These included a letter from Col. Stewart D. Hervey (Ret.) of San Antonio with the genealogy of William Hervey, and one from Wm. Rhodes Hervey, Jr., Balboa, Calif., which included descendants of William Blount Hervey, born in 1807. He had furnished a picture of Lord Bristol of England, who is a cousin of the American Herseys. An album of songs by Jack Jones, son of Irene Hervey and Alan Jones, provided music as time permitted.

The invocation was given by Hubert C. Hervey of Houston, after which guests were invited into the spacious kitchen where they were served from an array of delicious foods. Tables in the adjoining rooms were covered in soft blue, accented by mint green. Spring floral arrangements complimented the tables along which historical data of interest had been placed on cards. The Hervey coat-of-arms centered one large table. It was done in brass on walnut and was surrounded by English Ivy. Art work for the tables and family tree was done by a committee composed of Mmes. Freet, White, Harry and Cannon.

Herbert A. Hervey of Dallas served as master of ceremonies. He humorously reminisced as he introduced representatives of Albert Hervey's descendants, who in turn introduced members of their families. Seated at the head table with him were the following: T. C. McMullan representing descendants of Mary Elizabeth Hervey; Hubert Hervey, descendants of Horace Hervey; Albert C. Hervey, descendants of Wilbur Eugene Hervey; Anna Hervey Douglass, descendants of Charlie Albert Hervey; Virginia Kendrick Boyd, descendants of Anna Joyner Hervey; A. Claude Hervey, descendants of Robert (Harry) Hervey; Cora Hervey Bowden, descendants of Ernest Kirby Hervey; and the master of ceremonies, descendants of Herbert E. Hervey.

Mrs. Bowden was given special recognition for her tireless effort in coordinating arrangements for the reunion from its inception, as she was presented a corsage as a gift from her grandsons, Butch and Tom Freet, as representatives of the younger Herveys for keeping alive the interest in Hervey history and tradition.

Other recognitions included awards as listed: A trophy inscribed HERVEY REUNION '71 went to Mrs. Joyce Hervey Shirley for having traveled the greatest distance to attend (Michigan); an easel was presented to Mrs. Golden Albert (Herbert E.) Hervey for being the oldest present at 86 years; Crystal Wright was awarded a miniature hand-carved Italian box as being the youngest present (three years); Albert C. Hervey captured the silver loving cup for having the most children (six); and James S. Moose was presented a certificate in half-brother to Albert G.; Mr. and Mrs. James S. Moose, eldest son of Oney Scyprett Hervey, Thomas, who was born in 1816.

Mr. and Mrs. Moose added interest as they shared with the family information they had gathered from the Hervey history as early as the 1800s. Mr. Moose has just completed thirty-five years as a career diplomat, serving most of the time in the Mid-East. He served as Ambassador to Syria in 1954 and later to Sudan. They came from Kentucky and Morrilton, Ark.

The afternoon was spent in picture making and conversation. A tour to the old home at Chatfield and also to the cemetery for those who were interested was led by Clark McMullan.

Before the group disbanded the guest list showed the following had registered from six states:

Mr. and Mrs. A. Claude Hervey, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Kent Hervey, Corsicana; Miss Penny Hervey and guest, Miss Loraine Haack, Dallas; Mrs. Margaret Hervey Wilbur, Canadian; Dr. Harry S. Wilbur III, Dallas.

Man Injured In Motorcycle Accident Here

John Farmer, 22, 3317 Navarro Dr., was admitted to Memorial Hospital shortly after 8 a.m. Friday following a collision on his motorcycle with a truck at N. 7th St. and E. 5th Ave.

Hospital attendants said Farmer was to undergo surgery for a fracture of the right wrist following treatment in emergency for multiple abrasions of the left arm and lesser injuries.

An investigation into the mishap had not been completed at presstime by Officer G.W. Pritchett, but Chief Don Massey, who went to the accident scene, said Farmer was riding south when his cycle hit the right side of a Navarro County Action Committee truck, traveling north and in process of making a left turn onto 5th Ave.

The Justice of the Peace courts filed 27 complaints with the district attorney's office during June with 20 pleas of guilty recorded. There were five contested cases and two peace bond proceedings.

Lake Erie is the most polluted of America's Great Lakes.

Local Draft Board No. 95 was notified Friday by national selective service headquarters out of Washington "to re-instate its physical examination call for July 13" which previously had been cancelled in light of the expiration of the draft at midnight last Wednesday when Congress failed to extend the draft.

Each county draft board receives a quota from state headquarters each month, directing local board to call a specified number of men—either for physicals or induction, or both.

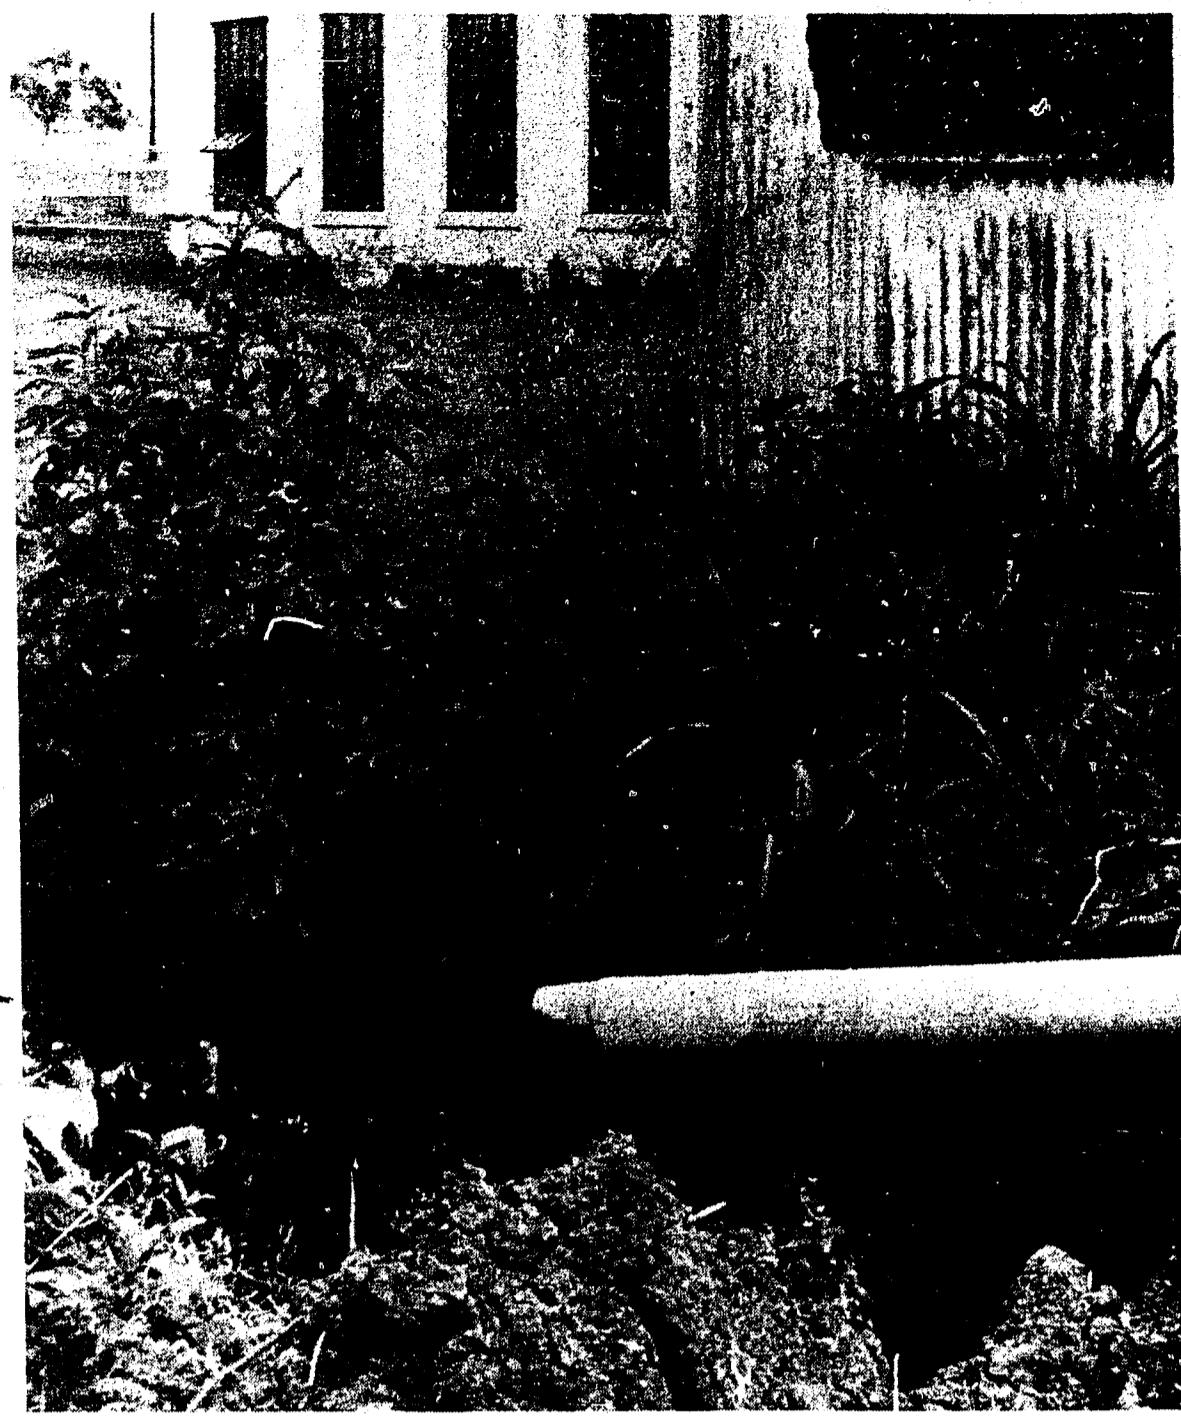

Prior to the expiration of the draft, Local Board No. 95 had been assigned a physical call quota of eight men to be filled on July 13, Mrs. Loretta Miller, board secretary, advised. This call was cancelled to the board by the national selective system Wednesday "until further notice."

Mrs. Miller said the "further notice" was received Friday when Local Board No. 95 was directed to "re-instate its physical examinations call for July 13."

Accordingly, Mrs. Miller said the board began Friday processing notices which will go out to the eight men slated to take physical examinations on July 13.

She said the order went out from national headquarters to all states and through state headquarters to all local boards to re-instate their physical examinations calls scheduled for July. The order does not apply to induction calls.

Source of the Problem?

The man-made drought that the subscribers of the M-E-N Water System have undergone for the past month started here at this pool on the eastern side of the Lake Halbert Dam. According to some sources, a bulldozer working in the area struck the feeder line from the lake, leading to the off-and-on supply of water. A workman at the lake said Friday that he understood the problem stemmed from a leakage in the two-inch line and nothing else. Whatever the cause, this is where it started. Maintenance men replaced the broken line with a four-inch pipeline but some say service is still haphazard at best. (Sun Staff Photo by Monte Smith)

Broken Water Line Floods Rural Area With High Feelings

By KIT BAUMAN
Golden Circle Editor

EUREKA—A bulldozer, cutting a pipeline through the area immediately east of the Lake Halbert dam four weeks ago, has cut instead a swath through this community, leaving many longtime friends no longer speaking to each other and a few residents threatening to file suit.

Just such an incident has caused two longtime neighbors to cease speaking to each other. One of the men, returning home late one night, spotted his neighbor watering his lawn. Only the day before, the neighbor had turned down his friend's request for water, pleading that he didn't have enough for himself. The two haven't spoken since that evening.

Sam Daniels, manager of Sam's Restaurant in Angus, installed a 1,500-gallon cistern outside his establishment after the initial disruption in service forced him to close for a day and a half. When Daniels complained to the board about the service, said a Eureka woman, tank number Three was shut off so that the restaurant could have water. The incident created hostilities which both Daniels and the Eureka woman agree should have arisen.

Beyond the subject of the disruption is the fact that most residents say they cannot get satisfactory explanation from the board of what steps are being taken to correct the situation; many add that they aren't satisfied with the board's story of what caused the disruption in the first place.

Charges of negligence in maintenance have been discussed, although most of the comments indicate that the people are looking for a scapegoat.

Offers of help in repairing the system have been turned down by the board, according to several persons, only adding fuel to the controversy.

Two weeks ago, said one woman, a delegation of six men called on one of the board members and asked that they be allowed to work on the pump station from which they drew their water. The board member agreed and turned over the keys to the pump house.

Thirty minutes after the men started work, the woman continued, water service in the area returned to normal for the first time since the disruption.

The following morning, the woman's husband—who had been one of the delegation that worked on the pump—was awakened by a tapping at the bedroom window. It was the board member, said the water board president, has pointed out that there is no keys to the pumphouse.

Rumors, hearsay, stubbornness and selfishness have all contributed to the crisis. Residents and board members alike say they have learned a lot about each other as a result and will carry the memories of what has happened long after the water service has returned to normal.

permits issued on a formula comparable to the Ehrenborg formulas so when this information is received in the tax office it will be more equal. He pointed out the building permits now reportedly are based on 1961 values, whereas the Ehrenborg formula is based on 1965 values, and should be updated if the City Commission proceeds to undertake complete re-appraisal over the next four years.

Tax Officer Pugh said he found the Ehrenborg formulas "hard to follow" in some instances, but was prepared to abide by any directions given him by the City Commission. He agreed uniform standards should be applied, and that going to 100 per cent rather than 62½ per cent would be simpler, would reduce the number of computations that now have to be made, and could be more easily understood by taxpayers.

Mayor Youngblood observed that some of those who received raises in their valuations this year couldn't understand why they got them and others didn't. "How was it they were first?" she asked. Chairman McGary said in approaching their work this year "the person who in the past year bought a new house became a 'first', the person who had an 'add-on' became a first, the person who built a new home became a first," as obviously there had to be a start somewhere.

Chairman McGary said he didn't believe there was anyone who didn't want to pay his fair share of taxes, once he knew his taxes were being determined equal under uniform standards applied to all. The Ehrenborg system does this, in the board's opinion.

City Commission requested the board submit formally its recommendations at the July 20 Commission meeting when it can take official action since the discussion session was unofficial and informal.
